NO. 76

Some Lively West Virginia Towns.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)
COOPER'S, W. VA., Nov. 17.—If you can listen awhile, I would like to whisper a few epistolary words to you and the many readers of the dear old JOURNAL. From Conference at Chattanooga, I was sent out to the "West Virginia Hills," and since gazing upon them, I have often thought of the words of the old song of "The West Virginia Hills," and the impulse is upon me to write of this region. We are 2,000 feet above sea level and geographically speaking, we are not far from the top of Holston Conference. The Norfolk and Western railroad has its branch lines all through this section and is doing much toward developing the vast resources of this wonderful territory of mineral deposits. We are at "Mill Creek Junction." It is from this place that the road to Iron-ton, O., is being built. When that road is finished we will have direct routes to all points on the globe. While our eyes love to dwell upon the beautiful scenery and survey the grandeur of the hills, we find that beauty is not the only interesting part of them; but that they are filled with rich veins of coal. Each day hundreds of cars loaded with coal and coke go rolling by and on out into the world to feed the furnaces of many factories and industrial establishments of the world.

In a distance of one and a half miles along the road here there are three towns, Coopers, Bromwell and Simmons, all incorporated as the City of Bromwell. The city has three depots, three post-offices and seven churches and stores almost without number. The three have a population of over 4,000 and offer men of means good opportunities for profitable investments. These three places and Pocahontas are all furnished electric lights from a plant situated here. A few years ago this was a quiet mountain region, undisturbed by the hum of the busy world around it. Now it is filled with the noise of the locomotive, while coke ovens and mines are all around in the valleys and upon the hills. Each day 10 passenger trains pass this place, thus giving the traveling public way to come and go at will.

In this, Mercer county, there never has been a bar-room and the good people seem to be determined that, that blot shall never be placed upon the fair name of their county. May they live to keep the monster forever out.

The inhabitants here are of many nationalities and scarcely can one be found who does not use some foreign word or accent, though he be a native American, thus giving another example of the familiar association with our fellow men producing assimilation of character and proving that we grow like that, that we are constantly with.

Three weeks ago Evangelist M. B. Williams, of Atlanta, Ga., erected his tent and opened a revival at Bromwell and in eight days there were about 400 conversions. In many respects it was the grandest meeting I ever saw. From the surrounding hills and hamlets the people came flocking in, and many who came to laugh remained to pray and were led to an acceptance of the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." Bro. Williams held a meeting in Stanford in July, 1890, and doubtless many of your readers will remember him. He is doing a grand work in this region for with his tent he reaches a class who seldom darken a church door.

There are seven protestant denominations here, but the Methodists have far the largest following, for they sent their pioneer preachers here years ago and they bore the hardships and trials and privations long before the days of development begun. And those old knights of the saddle bags and grey horses sowed the seed from which our present prosperity is but the partial harvest.

As I write this morning it is snowing and I know the hills will be beautiful, draped in a garment of white, and I am longing to see the bold and rugged landscape carpeted with snow and then watch the sun rise above the eastern hills and flood the world with his dazzling light.

In conclusion let me say that when you or any of your many readers wish for a change of location and want to get out into a live, business, mining region, where the shrill cry of the locomotive awakens the wild denizens of the forest, where dangers are plenty, times exciting and where amid all these surroundings you can find good and hospitable people, come over to Cooper's and we will take pleasure in showing you our town and do our best to entertain you.

Fraternally, BENJ. C. HORTON.

Why should laughter-loving people go to Brazil? Because they are Fosse-cas. The man who solves this will have a brick thrown at him.—Laurie Blake-ly.

—The Scientific American says that raw onions pounded into a poultice and bound to the throat, is an infallible remedy for diphtheria.

—A whole family was asphyxiated at Anderson, Ind., by natural gas.

A Loud and Long Kick Against the Favor-ism of the City Council.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)
May the Lord pity the tax payers, for the board of trustees of Stanford do not. This is the way it appears to a man up a tree. It has been asked by several tax-payers, citizens of the west end of town, what has the board done with taxes for several years past, and the high license from the saloons. The former is about $1,800 and the latter $2,000 per annum. It would be well for the board of trustees to publish a statement so the people can see and read for themselves. It is self evident that no money has been expended in the west end of town, except for three or four street lamps, which burn until about 9 p. m.; a good portion of the dark nights two or three of these are out by 7 p. m., or not lit at all. A bored well with no water was made in Macksville; $1,000 or more went to Macadamize Logan Avenue; $100 or more for a public well that benefited two trustees as much or more than the public. On the east end, corner Main street money has been spent for pavement and street improvement, half way to Rowland limits; $1,200 or $1,500 has been spent on the new pike leading from Stanford beyond Rowland and the trustees of Stanford have received as much or more private benefit than the public by virtue of the numerous saleable lots placed on the market, yet the tax-payers are paying for these private benefits to individual citizens.

A committee appointed by the mayor contracted with the citizens, as well as Mr. J. B. Higgins, if they (the citizens) would grade Daugherty and Watts Avenues the town would have the mettle placed on these streets and that if Drs. J. B. Owsley and J. G. Carpenter and Mr. W. M. Bright would build pavements the trustees would force the pavements to be made on Danville street. Two or more "called meetings" of the board were made. A majority of the citizens wanted pavements two years ago and do yet; but the board has kept no record of these contracts, and now turns a deaf ear to the wants and necessities of the public and tax payers in the west end of town, though the latter have been taxed for east end improvements and for the interests of private individuals.

All of the trustees except one live east of Lancaster street, in that part of town that has received the great financial benefits.

Messrs. Owsley, Bright and Carpenter have spent in the aggregate about $500 or $600 to comply with their part of the contract, while the trustees have done nothing in the west end of Stanford, tho' spent money freely in the east. These contracts were agreed upon with Messrs. Owsley, Bright and Carpenter two years or more ago. We, the tax-payers, are getting tired of being imposed upon and carrying the east end burdens. Now is time for money to be spent where it is most needed. Two or three trustees have said "the people on Danville st., 'dod done 'em,' let 'em walk through the mud. They have done so 50 or 100 years; let 'em keep it up; they deserve it." Beautiful language for public officials to use about their constituents.

As a matter of right and justice, Hustonville, Somerset, Danville and Lancaster streets and Logan Avenue are entitled to extra or more street lamps. Yet they are wanting; but on the new street and pike at the new bridge is a street lamp for the private benefit of one citizen and his family, and one or more trustees to view their lots after dark. It is now time for the trustees to pause and think, if they can not think and see. The tax-payers can and will look to their interests at the next town election.

Some of the trustees have been clamoring for water! water! "Water Works," and with all the noise and gas and "do nothing," Stanford has been dryer than for several years. Water is a good thing; yet there is not so much in it as some people think. While the trustees are exclaiming "Water, water, water!" they should remember there was a rich man in hades, in a hole calling "Water, water!" It would seem there are two Thomases, or a Thomas and a Gabriel on the board, and no sooner does Thomas decide and give to Gabriel than Gabriel rises and gives to Thomas, and to the disappointment and burden of the tax payers.

The mud, rain and slosh are now here; fall has come to stay, inviting winter with all its hardships and disasters. You trustees had all summer, spring and first half of fall to do your duty. You have broken your contract, been un-faithful to your word and the public.

—Mr. J. P. McDougald showed us a hog's foot yesterday on which there were six distinct toes. The hog was raised by Mr. S. H. Baughman, who perhaps never knew of the freak, and was in a lot of meat sent by Mrs. Baughman to Mrs. McD.

—A Cincinnati judge has decided that dehorning cattle is cruelty to animals, and punishable under the statute on that subject.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—Rev. Amos Stout will preach at the Baptist church on Thanksgiving day at 11 A. M.

—Those indebted to the firm of Chadwick & Edmiston will please call and settle their accounts. We don't mean your neighbor, we mean you. Chadwick & Edmiston.

—Miss Maggie Cochran, of Paint Lick, who has been visiting Misses Maggie Middleton and Annah McClure, has returned home. She is both beautiful and stylish. Misses Martha Holman, Eva Steger, Nannie and Bettie Edmiston are visiting Miss Maggie Tucker at her pleasant country home near Cedar Creek. Mr. Nelson, after several weeks sickness, is back at the depot checking baggage.

—Crab Orchard merchants sell merchandise cheaper than can be bought anywhere in the country and pay more for produce, and still we have two or three persons who boast of doing all of their trading in larger towns. If this town is too small for them, or they are too large for the town, we would advise them to go to Middlesboro or to Chicago and grow up with the towns, as they are not worthy of living in our quiet little village.

—The G. A. R. met here Friday and erected tomb stones to the following: J. F. Carson, Geo. Dollins, Theodore Egbert and Lieut. Abner F. Hoar. J. F. Carson belonged to the 3d Ky. Inf. Co. F., was a son of Judge J. E. Carson and was quite well known in this vicinity. Geo. Dollins was a son of James Dollins. Theodore Egbert was a son of Dr. Egbert and a brother to the late Judge A. M. Egbert. He belonged to the 19th Ky. Inf. Co. F. As a soldier, a braver never faced the smoke of battle. His untimely death was lamented by all. Lieut. Abner F. Hoar came to this place some time previous to the war from Lynchburg, Va. He was one of the kindest hearted men that ever lived, always first at the bedside of the sick and last at the grave. When our town was scourged with cholera in the year 1872 he stood bravely by the sick, which required more true courage than facing leaden hail. Long will he be remembered by the people of Crab Orchard.

—Fantha broke the yearling record at Stockton, Cal., Saturday, by going a mile in 2:25.31 seconds faster than any previous time. There seems to be too much record breaking on that track and calls for its resurvey are being made.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—The Hop Club will give a German at the Spencer House, Thursday evening.

—The Thanksgiving sermon will be preached at the Baptist church by Rev. Booth at 10 A. M.

—Work has been commenced on the new livery stable next to Miller's Hotel and the proprietors think they will be ready for business by the 1st of January.

—Much interest is being manifested in the protracted meeting now in progress at the Baptist church. Rev. Booth, who is conducting the services is an eloquent speaker and commands the entire attention of the large audiences that go to hear him morning and night.

—There is some talk of the county trading the old work-house property on Stanford street to the town trustees for the old fire trap adjoining the court-house used for an engine-house. A splendid idea, for if the old building should burn, which is very likely, there would be very little hopes of saving the court-house.

—The examining trial of Estis and Graham, charged with burning residences, stretching barbed wire across turnpike, &c., in Lower Garrard, resulted in the defendants being held in the sum of $800 each to await the action of the grand jury. A pretty strong case was brought out against them and much interest is being taken in it.

—John Riffe, of Hustonville, was here Sunday. A. J. Rice, Jr., of Boyle, was in town Saturday. Horace Herndon, who is attending Hogsett Academy at Danville, spent Sunday with his parents. John Kerby, who has been attending school in Louisville, returned home last week, having finished his course of study. Rev. J. R. Terry left Monday for Indiana to eat Thanksgiving turkey with the home folks. He will return Saturday. W. O. Dunlap, of Winchester, is here. Mrs. F. J. White has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Armstrong, of Dallas, Texas. Commonwealth's Attorney Herndon, is attending court at Russellville. Hon. Robert Harding, of Danville, was here last week assisting in the prosecution of the parties charged with stretching wires across the pike, &c., in Lower Garrard. Mr. Harding is an able lawyer and a polished gentleman and his Lancaster friends are always glad to see him. Walter Grinnan, of Hustonville, was here Sunday.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Thomas Newman, who used to be clerk at Crab Orchard Springs, was married last week.

—Dr. Phil T. Dedman, of Harrodsburg, will wed Miss Sally Platte, of Kansas City, on the 25th.

—One of our excellent school teachers who takes a great interest in common schools will become a bride Thursday. The fortunate man is a widower and a mighty good judge of a woman.

—At the wedding of Miss Nettie Martin and Dr. L. A. Givens at Oynthiana, in the Methodist church, the cotton decorations representing a winter scene caught fire from a candle while the ceremony was being said. A panic ensued and several persons were hurt in the precipitate flight. The blaze was finally extinguished and the knot tightly tied.

—John Kaufman and Miss Minnie Worthington eloped Wednesday night from Casey and after many difficulties reached Jeffersonville and were married. A brother of the groom assisted and the three nearly froze to death getting to the depot, which was many miles away. The girl made her escape from the mansion of a cruel aunt by a ladder placed at the window by the lover.

—Mr. Samuel C. Lackey, formerly of this place, but now connected with a large wholesale house in Atlanta, will be married to-morrow to Miss Jennie Ella Welden, of Cuero, Texas. The invitations state that they will be at home after Dec. 1st. Mr. Lackey is a most worthy and exemplary young man and the friends of his earlier years are rejoiced over his prospective happiness.

—The Scientific American, in taking a look at the tin-plate matter, says that about 40 boxes of tin are turned out daily at the Philadelphia dipping factory, but that all the plates used for dipping are imported from England and as yet there is not a tin-plate manufactory in the United States.

—At Plymouth, N. H., Frank C. Almy, charged with the murder of Miss Christine Warden, was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged in December, 1892. It was a most cowardly and brutal crime, the evidence was direct and the trial was brief. Almy was an employed by the girl's father and killed her because she wouldn't marry him.

—Mr. Irby, the man who succeeds Wade Hampton in the United States Senate, says that Mr. Cleveland will be nominated for President by the National Democratic Convention and that he will have no warmer supporters than the Alliance farmers of South Carolina. Senator Irby is an Alliance man, but far from being a third party advocate.

THE National Alliance, in session at Indianapolis, split on the sub-treasury scheme and the anti-faction has called a National Convention to meet in Memphis, Dec. 16, to which all organizations of farmers opposed to the scheme are invited to send delegates. The Indianapolis body favored the confederation of the Farmers Mutual Benefit Association and the Knights of Labor with the Alliance and at a joint meeting with the former the third party movement was endorsed with the wildest enthusiasm. The constitution was amended so as to admit women and insinuations to its congressmen forbidding them entering any party caucus which does not adhere to the principles of the Ocala platform, were adopted. President Polk was re-elected for the ensuing year. The sensational feature of the meeting was a charge made by a leading member that C. W. McCune, chairman of the executive committee of the alliance, robbed the Texas Alliance Exchange of $50,000 and sold his influence in Georgia to the attorney for the West Point Terminal for $2,000 and railroad passes. A sweet kettle of fish to be sure.

THE governor of Maryland has appointed Ex-Congressman C. H. Gibson to fill the vacancy in the U. S. Senate caused by the death of Senator Wilson. He will only serve about a month as the Legislature will elect a successor in January, but he will draw pay from the date of Wilson's death. The fact that Gibson was hustling for the clerkship of the House of Representatives is not calculated to inspire the country with admiration for his greatness. The approaching Maryland Legislature will be called on to elect two U. S. Senators. Gorman has made his calling and election sure, but who will be the other fortunate remains to be seen.

BRO. BINGHAM, a Methodist preacher stationed near Abingdon, Va., doesn't take much stock in the turning-the-other-cheek business, when one is slapped, at least he does not practice it, for when a fellow assaulted him he opened fire on him and perforated his diaphragm. We suspect he did him right. There are many people in the world who take advantage of those who are generally considered non-combatants, and it is refreshing to hear occasionally that one of such cowards runs against a buzz-saw.

THE Lebanon Enterprise grows absolutely humorous in treating the question of the alleged candidacy of Andrew Jackson Gross for Congress. It makes much fun of what it calls the "posterior portion" of his name and of the "paucity of his many qualifications" for the office. The Enterprise must admit however that Gross is the peer of its present representative in every particular and will size up pretty well with any other man in the Fourth District, which is not plethoric of congressional timber since Gov. Knott has retired.

THE Old Dominion has compromised her debt to the satisfaction of her creditors. Now let her go to work to pay what she has agreed to pay and forever eliminate the debt question from State issues. It has been the cause of a number of unworthy men being placed at the head of affairs by voters who were dishonest enough to prefer repudiation to any kind of liquidation.

THE National Democratic Committee will meet in Washington on the 9th to fix the time and place for the next convention. The republican committee met yesterday for the same purpose and probably selected Chicago, though many cities sought the honor, including San Francisco, which offered to pay the expenses of all the delegates if she were accorded the honor.

THE prohibitionists are circulating papers all over the country for signers to an agreement to vote their ticket at the presidential election, with the understanding that unless they can secure a million signers no prohibition candidate will be nominated in 1892. With this proviso we should think the probabilities of a nomination are not as iridescent as Ingalls' dream.

WE are glad to announce that one of the dozen fools who started to out-fast Tanner, for the benefit of a New York museum and themselves, is dead, and we hope in our next to record the deaths of the other 11. The country can better afford to feed its laborers than give room to fasting idlers, who prefer risking their lives to doing honest work.

THE Covington Post refers us to the New York dispatches to prove that Mills is far from having a cinch on the speakership. That's all right, but we'll wager Mills gets there at last in great shape if not on the first ballot. He is the right kind of a democrat.

PETER GRIFFIN is in jail at Lexington held in $1,000 bond for incest with his daughter, who is the sole prosecuting witness. If Judge Lynch would take charge of such a case as this there could surely be no objection from any quarter.

THANKSGIVING day has again rolled around and brought with it blessings innumerable to the temporal man. In no year for a long time has the soil yielded so abundantly to the husbandman's labor, while all classes of business are, as a general thing, prospered most gratifyingly. Peace and plenty have abounded, epidemics and pestilence have been stayed and the whole land smiles with gladness. Great and good is the Giver of these gifts. Let us praise him with thankful hearts for the blessings that he has so abundantly showered upon us, and show that praise and gratitude by helping those who may be less fortunately situated than we.

NO MATTER who is chosen Speaker of the House, Gov. McCreary is pretty sure of the chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. He was virtually chairman of this committee all the time that Perry Belmont was its nominal head and on his appointment as minister to Spain he succeeded to it. During the two years of Reed rule he was the first democrat on the committee and now no democratic speaker would, we think, no matter how the governor voted in his race, refuse to appoint him chairman of the committee on which he has served so faithfully and for which he is so eminently qualified.

JOHN HOOK, son of the Congressman who died mysteriously a short time ago, at his home at Knoxville, was elected to fill the vacancy Saturday by 5,000 majority, about half what his father got. Knoxville went democratic by 553 majority, but the negroes and ignorant Hill Billies make the district intensely republican.

J. S. McWILLIAMS, postmaster and merchant at O. K., this county, tells the Somerset Reporter that our statement that he put himself in hiding because some outraged husbands were going to wear him out for talking too much with his mouth about their wives, is untrue, that the cause of his sudden disappearance was on account of threats made him by illicit whisky-dealers who sought he had given them away to U. S. officers. We had our information straight, but Williams can have the benefit of his statement. We observe, however, that he did not deny giving us a worthless check, which if he doesn't redeem, we shall see if there is any virtue in a suit for obtaining money under false pretense, with Lawyer John W. Dye, who was also caught, as prosecuting attorney.

THE banquet given by Garrard Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias, to the members of the Stanford lodge, at Lancaster Friday night, was a grand success and an occasion that will not soon die out in the memory of those present and particularly the Stanford people who will ever cherish a kindly feeling for their Garrard county brothers, who were so prodigal in their hospitality. Before the banquet, however, the visiting members were treated to some splendid work in his 24 and 31 ranks and were otherwise kindly cared for and delightfully entertained. Some 75 covers were laid for the banquet and there was hardly a vacant chair left when the K. of P. and a few invited friends had secured seats at the bountifully laden table. After doing full justice to the several courses splendidly served, Hon. Wm. Herndon delivered an address of welcome, which had the desired effect. Will Wearen, of this place, was next on the programme and for some ten minutes interested his audience on the subject of "Ladies' 'Conquests,'" by Rev. J. R. Tercy, was highly enjoyed. The speaker interspersed a sufficient amount of wit to keep his hearers in a good humor, but his toast was a sound argument and full of encouragement for those who are inclined to be faint-hearted and fall by the wayside. J. S. Fowles, Jr., then spoke on his home lodge and on the duty of its members and was the recipient of hearty applause. Hon. R. H. Tomlinson, the master of ceremonies, whose toast was "Garrard and Myrtle," told of the good emanating from the order and eulogized in beautiful words the founders as well as the higher officers of to-day, who are doing all in their power to promote a good thing, that the world is rapidly catching on to. There were also speeches by Revs. Frank Booth and Stout, all of whom had a kind word for the great order of Knights. During the evening time between the toasts the Lancaster Orchestra dispensed some lovely music, which also added to the pleasure of the memorable occasion.

IT rained Saturday and Sunday and yesterday it was decidedly blustery and disagreeable. Gusts of snow came for several minutes repeatedly during the day with the high, cold wind that prevailed. Cold and fair is the prediction for to-day.

AN application for a special election on the question of selling liquors at Lancaster was made yesterday to the county court. Judge M. C. Sanley argued for the petitioners, 200 in number, and Gen. W. J. Landrum for the citizens opposed to it, and Judge Robinson withheld his decision till next court.

THE GREATEST OFFER EVER MADE.—We will send the SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL one year and furnish the subscriber a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica, 20 volumes, and revised to 1891, delivered, for $7.50. The books are not reprints, but new editions. No such offer was ever made before by a country newspaper.

J. R. RICE, the so-called Cow Boy Evangelist, who recently appeared here and with a handsome young woman who passed as his wife, preached and sang on the street after the manner of the salvation army, was fined $20 in Bowling Green for whipping her. Afterwards he made a very bitter speech against the court and succeeded in raising enough from the crowd to pay the fine, but the judge had him arrested for contempt and in default of bail he went to jail. He ought to be sent to the penitentiary for life for raising his hand against any woman, especially as pretty a one as his alleged wife.

IF one thief is meaner than another that one is meaner who confines his depredations to helpless people. A few miles out in the country live Misses Malinda and Mary Pepples. There is no man on the place and the property of these good old ladies is continually being preyed upon. Harness, chickens, butter and in fact everything that the scamps can get their hands on are stolen. Not long since all the harness was stolen. Miss Malinda, nothing daunted, sent to town and replaced it. The next set was stolen and another set bought and that was also taken. But should these lines reach the eye of the marauder he will beware. If he doesn't catch it on some of his prowling trips to that house, it will be because he ceases to make them.

Garrett, who went from Maysville a few years ago and took charge of the First Baptist church at Austin, Texas, recently closed a meeting that resulted in 60 additions to the membership.—Carlisle Mercury.

Attention of the public is invited to the fact that this is the only National Bank in Stanford. Under the provisions of the National Bank Act, depositors are secured not only by the capital stock, but by the stockholders' liability for an amount equal to the stock, so that depositors of this institution are secured by a fund of $200,000. It is better supplied now with facilities for transacting business promptly and liberally than ever before in its long and honorable career. Accounts, deposits, advances, discounts, and individuals respectfully solicited.

AMONG INCURABLES.

THE BEAUTIFUL WORK TAKEN UP BY A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

May Kellard's Sympathy with the Inmates of the New York Hospital for Incurables—Cheering Those Who Know They Will Never Be Well Again.

(Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association.)

Have you any idea what it means to be old forever? To be old and sick and crippled and friendless? To have nobody to come and see you? To wonder, if you have wit enough to wonder at all, whether the tea will be good tonight, or whether the doctor will remember your bad cough, or whether your neighbor will be waking you up during the night screaming for her child, that child which will never come to her again? All this and a thousand more sad things you see when you go to where the incurables are kept at the expense of the city of New York.

There are thousands of women in New York who spend enough money on soda water to give pleasure to one of these miserable wretches. To these, half blind, half crazy, there seem to be very few who ever think of them. One of these thoughtful persons is a young girl, rich, pretty, and with everything about her in her own home that money can get. Yet twice every week she visits the hospital, taking with her a store of the little dainties that the old people like. Packages of tea with lumps of sugar packed in, fruit, jelly, buns, and, funny enough, a little candy, because there are some of the old women who say they like to have it.

Long before it is time for the boat plying between New York and the island on which the hospital is situated, to arrive some of the old women and old men are eagerly watching for it, and have come way down the road that they may walk up to the hospital with their friend, calling on her head so many "God bless you's" that certainly the bread that she cast upon the waters must return to her. In she goes among all the sick people, people who you know will never be well; remember how long that word "never" is—it means "until death comes."

They tell their sorrows and their joys. One old lady is grieved to the heart because a member of some church association wouldn't give her a pear because she didn't belong to the right church, and another begs her to tell her truthfully when her boy will come home—he went away such a long time ago, and when the news came that he had been drowned the poor mother's wits went from her and she believes he is still alive and is coming to her. Could you tell her that he wasn't? Certainly not. And so the good Samaritan pats the poor old woman on the shoulder, whispers some words of good cheer and gives her a package that has in it tea, sugar, buns and a great big pear so rosy on one side that the poor creature delightedly looks at it for an hour. Now, this girl who is working for God's own people belongs to God's own church.

You may be a Baptist, a Presbyterian, a Methodist, or whatever church you have chosen to serve God in, but no matter what your belief may be, May Kellard never asks one question except, "What can I do for you, my friend?" And then she not only hears and marks down in her little book what you want, but she is certain never to forget. Her promises are not written in sand, and even these poor semi-idiot know it. After the feast is all over then comes another cheerful time. Something bright is read, and then the word goes around that "Miss Kellard is going to sing." There she stands with her hands folded, with no grand notes to accompany her except the ones sung by the angels in heaven, and she sings what they ask her.

Sometimes it's a hymn, sometimes it's a merry little song, sometimes it's a pathetic ballad, but always at the last it is one song. A poor cripple, all drawn out of shape, says something that nobody can make out except Miss Kellard and then sweet and clear the notes go out of "Home, Sweet Home." And I, who stand there looking and listening, wonder if those poor creatures will not soon be taken to that everlasting home where there is no suffering, and whether already there is not written in the great golden Book of Life the name of May Kellard, and opposite is graven, "As ye have done it unto me."

ISABEL A. MALLON

Feathers, Everywhere.

Everything is trimmed with feathers this year. Ostrich feathers lead, but the less expensive cock feathers are nearly as popular. These are shown in flat trimmings, edgings, boas and collars in every color and combination of colors. They are not very extravagant considering their novelty. A long boa can be bought for $6.75, and the pretty collars, tied with a ribbon at the throat, cost as low as $1.85. The ostrich boas cost from ten dollars up. Nothing could be more becoming than these beautiful, fluffy things. They soften angles, conceal bones and hide wrinkles in elderly women, while a pretty girl, with her soft cheeks half buried in their airy depths looks enough like an angel to deceive her own brother, which is putting it as strongly as possible.

Setting It Right.

There was a sign on the barber shop window reading, "Boots Blacked Inside." A pedestrian halted and read the sign, and then opened the door and said: "That ought to be shoes. Not one man in fifty wears boots nowadays."

The barber didn't say anything, but after due reflection concluded the man was right, and so changed the sign to read, "Shoes Blacked Inside." He had scarcely put it up when the same man came along again, and opened the door to say:

"No one wants the inside of his shoes blacked. We pay to have the shine on the outside. Better fix it."

The barber puzzled over it for awhile and realized that the man was right, and next day the sign was replaced by one reading: "The outside of shoes blacked inside."

"That's perfectly correct," said the fault finder, as he came along in the afternoon. "Never give yourself away on the English language. Always say what you mean. Better put up a sign in the other window of 'Shave You While You Wait.' Everybody will then understand that they must wait while you shave."—New York World.

An Awkward Meeting.

He (embarrassed)—Why—it's—it's a—quite a long time since I saw you last.
She (not at all embarrassed)—Yes, I haven't laid eyes on you since you proposed. Why don't you call?—Harper's Bazar.

Spotting a Smell.

He was walking along Sackett street, near Court, in Brooklyn, the other afternoon, when he suddenly stopped and sniffed the air in all directions. His nose had found a familiar odor, and pretty soon he traced it to a certain chimney and ascended the steps of a house and rang the bell.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he said to the woman who came to the door, "but do you keep a cook?"

"Yes, sir," she replied as she looked at him in a puzzled way.

"Is she in at the present time?"

"Yes, sir, but she doesn't want to see no agents."

"Oh, I'm no agent, ma'am. You just call to the cook through the speaking tube that the water has all boiled out of her potatoes, and that the said potatoes are burning. Smell 'em very plainly in the street. Happens every day at my own house. Cook is probably reading a novel or got a cold in the head. That's all, ma'am—no trouble at all—good evening."—New York World.

Somewhat Complicated.

Here is a sentence, taken from the local columns of the Southbridge Journal, which is well worth reading: "A man from Wales, on his way to Southbridge after meat with a pair of horses drove into the village Friday about 11 a. m., when a bolt, holding the neap dropped out, causing fright to the horses, which jumped to the right and left to get clear of the wagon, pulling the driver with considerable force, but he still held on to the team, until obliged, to save his head, to let them go and they cleared themselves from the wagon and ran from the upper end of the village to Bennett's corner, where they were stopped by men at work on the street." The facts in the case seem to be all there.—The Writer.

He Showed Her.

They had been sitting in silence for some time; the clock was slowly dragging its hands to the points that would mark 11. She had yawned, fidgeted and so forth, several times, but he did not seem to catch on, as the seminary girls have it. At length she said: "Do you know any slang phrases, George?"

"Well, yes, I believe so," he said, rather surprised at the question.

"What is meant by 'getting a move on you'?"

George looked at her fixedly for a moment. Then he said he would give her an imitation of the slang, and she was alone.—New York Press.

These Clever Impromptus.

Bulfinch—That was a wonderfully clever speech that your husband just made; and he tells me it was entirely impromptu.

Mrs. Wooden—Oh, yes; quite so.

Bulfinch—It is marvelous that he could do so well when he looks so tired.

Mrs. Wooden—Well, I should think he might look tired; he sat up all night thinking what he'd say.—Boston Courier.

Beyond Aid.

Bimly—The doctors have given the poor fellow up.

Jimly—Is his case so desperate as that?

Bimly—Yes. He has no more money. —Exchange.

Volcanic.

"No brighter eyes did ever glow such lovely brows beneath. And never open lips to show such rows of pearly teeth."

Thus said I to myself as there I stood with hat in hand To bid "good night" to maiden fair That did my love command.

She smiled: I was about to speak, When horrors! came a wheeze, A creaking of her nose and cheek And then a giant sneeze!

A sneeze that jarred the earth, and at whose winding up I found Those pearly teeth within my hat, Her left eye on the ground.
